Problem

- AI tools today \neq a full team
- Primarily Developer only
- Missing PM, Scrum Master, Architect, QA
- Pain: Juggling tools, roles, no cohesion

Solution

- Agile AI in a Box
- Plain-English input → backlog → development → testing → iteration → results
- Already demonstrated process on two working apps.

Proof

- Proven methodology
- Two apps built without writing code
- Videos recorded as demo evidence

Market

- Millions of non-technical founders, startups, and small businesses
- If I can do it, so can they
- Growing 'no-code + AI' demand
- No-code AI platform market projected $5B (2024) → $25B+ (2030+)
- CAGR (25–38%)

Competitive Landscape

Feature	Agile AI in a Box	Replit Agent	StackAI	Relevance	Bubble/No-Code

Target User	Non-technical founders / SMBs	Developers	Ops teams	Automation users	Non-technical (limited AI)
Proven Accessibility	✓ Founder built 2 apps at 72	✗ Developer-focused	✗ Ops-focused	✗ Technical setup needed	✓ Easy, but no AI team
Credibility	✓ IBM PM, GE Awards, Published	✗ Startup	✗ Startup	✗ Startup	✗ Generic tool
Funding Strategy	✓ Lean partner-first equity approach	Raised $M+	Raised $16M	Raised $37M	Varies

Why Me / Why Now

- At 72, seven years into retirement, I proved AI software teams are real today
- 40 years as a project management consultant with IBM, GE Information Services, and PwC — delivering IT programs for dozens of Fortune-500 clients.
- Last project at IBM was an AI Watson delivery.
- 5 time GE Mark Maker, Agile Delivery Excellence Award, and 3 published articles
- Timing: AI agents maturing now
- Not looking to get rich so modest ask

Closing

- At 72, I've delivered for IBM, GE, PwC.
- Now I want to deliver one more thing: A contribution to the future of software development.
- The Ask — Offering meaningful equity (up to 49%) for a partner who supplies business leadership, marketing, and a modest funding support ($5–10K/mo) so I can remain fully focused on building.
- Let's partner to make it real.
